ENGINEERS WERE TO BLAME.

The Injuries of Mr. and Mrs. Spinn Who Were on the Wrecked Kankakee Train.

Thomas Spinn, the baggage-master on the Kankakee train which was wrecked near Chicago Thursday morning, and his wife, who was with him at the time of the accident, were brought to their home in this city yesterday morning. Mr. Spinn was cut about the face and head, and received many bruises on the body. Mr. Spinn received a dislocated shoulder. Neither one is injured seriously, although the wounds are painful. Mr. Spinn attributes the accident to the fault of the engineers, both of whom, he said, appeared to be trying to make the crossing first. He knew nothing of the impending danger until the whistle sounded the alarm. He had been looking out and saw the freight-train ahead on the track. He only had time to grasp the brake when the crash came. He was thrown out of the car and knocked senseless. Mrs. Spinn was buried under a pile of baggage, and that she was not killed is miraculous. The fireman is the only one supposed to be fatally injured. The passengers censured the engineer very severely for jumping from the engine.

A Peculiar Case of Insanity. Lizzie Price, the wife of James H. Price, living at the corner of West and Washington streets, was committed to the Insane Hospital yesterday, on the affidavit of Dr. Prunk. On Aug. 7, 1879, the woman, then known as Mrs. Lizzie J. Harris, was declared insane. The commission, as the records show, was called by James H. Price, and it was upon his testimony that she was sent to the hospital. In March, 1880, she escaped from that institution, and on the 30th of that month was married to Price. Now, after that marriage, she has been sent back to the hospital, this time as his wife. Price is about sixty years of age, and his wife is only a few years younger.

SPIRIT OF THE CAMPAIGN

The Visiting Illinoisans Entertain a Crowd with Music and a Speech.

Parade by the Columbia Club, Which Represents Young Business Men Who Are Heartily in Favor of the Republican Party.

It was after midnight last night before the last echoes of the thousands of enthusiastic pilgrims ceased to be heard. The Illinois delegations were the last to depart for home, and they went away as demonstrators as they came in. They made a noise from the time they reached the city until they departed, and it was always for Harrison and Morton. After supper last evening they gathered in front of the New Denison House and enjoyed themselves in various ways for two hours or more. Many of the Indiana pilgrims, whose returning trains did not go until late at night, joined them, and at 8:30 o'clock there was a crowd of several thousand Republicans present that blocked half the square between Market and Ohio streets. There were calls for music, and in response the Jacksonville, Ill., military band appeared on the balcony and gave a delightful serenade. After pieces had been rendered, there were calls for a speech. D. H. Paddock, of Kankakee, Ill., who happened to be on the balcony, consented to satisfy the crowd by making a brief speech. He said there were many reasons why the people of Illinois want Gen. Ben Harrison for President. They wanted a man who would not favor those who were once in rebellion against the government with everything they desired; they wanted a man who would not elevate ex-rebels to the Supreme Bench of the United States; they wanted men to sit upon the Supreme Bench who had always been in sympathy with the government. He was glad to see the people of Indiana going into the canvass with a will. The people of Illinois intended to give Harrison the largest majority it had ever given any President, and they believed the people of Indiana would do their whole duty. "The eyes of the whole world are turned upon you Republicans of Indiana," said he, "and you cannot fail to do what is expected of you, can you?"

The speaker said he believed the ideas of 1840, when the other Harrison swept the country like a cyclone, were reigning, and also the ideas of 1860-65 were again to the front. It had often been said that General Harrison was a cold man; he denied it, and he knew every other man in Illinois and Indiana who knew the presidential candidate would agree with him. Gen. Harrison had reason to feel proud. He was one of the men who faced death to save his country, and now he had become the leader of the grandest party in existence. A speech was then made by the largest majority it had ever given any President, and they believed the people of Indiana would do their whole duty. "The eyes of the whole world are turned upon you Republicans of Indiana," said he, "and you cannot fail to do what is expected of you, can you?"

Mr. Paddock was loudly applauded by the crowds on the street. At the conclusion of his speech the Jacksonville band furnished more music. When it finally ceased to play, the people were not satisfied, and there were loud calls for more speech-making. The Kankakee City Band then came upon the balcony, and also gave a delightful serenade. There were no more speeches, but Mr. J. L. Hamlin, of Kankakee, sang a campaign song that greatly pleased the crowd. The band kept up the serenade until nearly 11 o'clock, when it was time to leave for the depot. Thousands remained in the street until the music ceased, and their enthusiasm for Harrison and Morton was unbounded.

Parade of the Columbia Club.

The Columbia Club made its first public appearance last night. Only about half of the members turned out, on account of the fact that the uniforms of all were not completed. As it was, however, they made a very attractive display, although the absence both of torch-lights and street-lights prevented a good view of them. They met in Pfafflin's Hall about 7:30 o'clock, and, preceded by a handsomely-uniformed drum corps, began their march from that place. There were about fifty who wore the regular uniform of the club—blue flannel coats and pants and white Derby hats. The remainder had lavender-colored badges, bearing the name of the club. The majority of the members are young men. Mayor Denny is a member, and marched with the procession last night. The drum corps is quite a feature of the organization, which is merely the old Light Infantry Drum Corps re-organized. It has about twenty members, including several excellent buglers. It is the latter who add such a charm to the music of the corps, and the familiar sound last night was greeted with hearty applause.

The club marched up Pennsylvania street as far as New York, and then changed to Meridian, as far as the procession went as far as the Seventh street. Thence they went east to Delaware, and down that street to General Harrison's house. Here a delegation of the Young Men's Republican Club, of Jacksonville, Ill., had just concluded a call. General Harrison had been apprised of the contemplated visit of the Columbia Club, and he and Mrs. Harrison were at the door ready to receive the callers. Gen. and Mrs. Harrison stood at the left of the door, greeting each one of the members of the club as they filed in. Their stay was very short, and there was no attempt at speech-making. Gen. Harrison was personally acquainted with nearly all of the members of the club, who were presented, also, to Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee. The club then formed in line, and marched to the drum corps marched down town upon Delaware and Pennsylvania streets, disbanding in front of Pfafflin's Hall. A large crowd was gathered in and about General Harrison's yard during the entire evening, and many called in and paid their respects. In addition to the members of the Jacksonville Young Men's Republican Club, the corps' drum corps of that place called, as they said, especially to see Mr. Harrison.

Harrison and Morton Guards. John A. M. Cox, president of the Union Veterans' Association, reports four new companies added to the association in this city. The First Battalion (colored) Infantry is in the list. This makes twenty companies organized, aggregating seventeen hundred to date. Quite a number of companies of the Union Veterans' Army of this State, of which Mr. Cox is department commander, have sent in rolls asking to be placed in line in the Union Veterans' Association. Harrison and Morton Guards. One of the southern counties reports a regiment of Infantry with ten companies and a battalion of cavalry of four companies.

Actively in the Work. Ira J. Chase, Republican candidate for Lieutenant-governor, was at the State central committee rooms a short time yesterday. He is already actively in the campaign, and is delivering speeches daily. He has engagements ahead for several weeks, and has no knowledge that an arrangement will be made for a joint debate between himself and W. R. Myers, the Democratic candidate. Mr. Chase says his observations have made him confident the Republicans will carry the State unless the Democrats should resort to fraud, as they did two years ago.

Notes of the Campaign. The Sixth ward Republicans had an enthusiastic meeting last night at which General Coburn made a strong speech. The crowd was large. The national Republican committee has asked for the services of John L. Griffiths. It is the desire to have him make several speeches in the East.

New Incorporations. The Quadruple Saving and Loan Association of this city, yesterday incorporated, with a capital stock of $1,000,000. Its directors are Francis M. Churchman, Mason J. Osgood, Wm. B. Burford, Charles M. Raschig, David C. Bryan, John S. Spann, Louis Siersdorfer and Ovid B. Butler. The Portland, Jay county, Handle and Manufacturing Company was also incorporated. Its capital stock is $50,000. Geo. B. Bassett, Chas. W. Collett, Charles P. Collett and others are its directors.

Somewhat Improved. Miss Anna Herron, the insane woman who attempted to commit suicide Thursday morning by cutting her head with an ax, has regained consciousness, and Dr. Fletcher, who is attending her, thinks she will recover. She still remains at Dr. Fletcher's private sanitarium. Her mental condition seems more disturbed than before she made the attempt to take her life, and she still threatens to end her existence if she is given an opportunity.

THEY FAVORED THE TRUST.

Natural Gas for School Buildings Leads to Lively Discussion About Bids.

The School Board held another very lively meeting last night, with all members in their places but A. R. Baker, who is out of the city. Owing to the political demonstration at the New Denison at the same hour, there was some difficulty in the management of affairs at times, but during the noisiest portion of the band's efforts to satisfy the crowd collected in front of the hotel all discussion was laid aside. The evening was entirely devoted to routine business. Jno. P. Frenzel, chairman of the finance and auditing committee, reported bills presented amounting to $2,306.56.

E. L. Williams, chairman of the committee on supplies, then presented to the board a recommendation to advertise for bids for providing natural gas as a fuel for all school buildings. It was also recommended that for the remaining buildings block coal be used. The introduction of this suggestion was at once the cause of a heated discussion, in which the members took sides as they favored or opposed certain competing gas companies. The question at issue was one of a dinner character involving the right of the committee on supplies to receive bids for fuel contracts, which, it was claimed by some, most properly belonged to the committee on heating, ventilation and janitors, and also the right of competition between the different companies for the supplying of gas. Mr. Frenzel at once opposed the motion, on the ground that its origin sprang from the wrong source, and that, under the circumstances, it was unnecessary. He moved to lay the matter over until a further meeting.

Mr. Greenstreet and others claimed that for three years the work of furnishing fuel had been left to the committee on supplies, but Mr. Frenzel's motion to lie upon the table was carried.

Wm. B. Burford & Co. were awarded the contract for printing 1,200 copies of the manual for $150.00 a decrease in last year's expense. Frederick Kline, chairman of the committee on heating, ventilation and janitors, then reported the natural-gas discussion by making a report which stated that the twenty-line of the school buildings would be in reach of the Consumers Gas Trust by the 1st of October, and a further that they had agreed to furnish gas as fuel for the coming year for $3,150, being $2,382.24 less than last year's coal bill. This sum includes the furnishing of 184 heaters, twenty-eight grates, seventeen stoves, eighteen cook-stoves, in janitors' rooms, etc., and nine boilers, supplying high school buildings 1 and 2, and school buildings 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15, 17, 18, 21, 24, 25, 27, and 28. Full an hour was spent in discussion upon the adoption of the report, it being maintained by Messrs. Greenstreet, Haughey and others that sufficient time had not been allowed for the contracts of competing companies to be considered. A motion, made by Mr. Haughey, to lay the matter over until a special meeting one week from next Monday night was lost, and the discussion continued. It was conceded that in all such cases where the Trust company would be the only one capable of furnishing a building with gas the contract should be awarded; but where two or more companies will be concerned it is but fair to consider the contracts of all before a final decision be made. To deprive the country of the opportunity of bidding on all buildings where such buildings would be possible, it was claimed, would be merely to cut off competition, and to aid in the creation of a monopoly. The yes and nays were called for on the question of the original motion and a vote taken, resulting in its passage. Those voting in the affirmative were Messrs. Conner, Frenzel, Galvin, Jameson, Kline, Leopold and Vonnegut; negative, Messrs. Williams and Greenstreet. Mr. Haughey declined to vote, on the ground that he had had sufficient time for consideration. The board then adjourned.

Too Much Malaria. There is considerable malaria in the city at present, and it is attributed by physicians to the presence of open gas trenches. "It has been an unusually healthy season," said Dr. Hays, yesterday, "and it is not yet time for the regular fall malaria; but it is not surprising that these numerous gas trenches cause some sickness."

Fill Up Those Trenches.

The gas trenches appear to be attracting everybody's attention—even bodies of the animal species. A stray cow tumbled into one at the corner of Pennsylvania and North streets yesterday afternoon, 3 o'clock. The animal was badly mangled, and was killed by a good portion of the city, and had viewed so many of these holes in which no work was going on, remarked, rather facetiously: "Well, I never saw a city undergoing such extensive street improvements."

Building Permits.

The following building permits were issued yesterday: A. S.
